Abstract

Phys. Rev. B 101, 154401 (2020) - Published 15 May 2020

DOI: 10.1103/PhysRevB.101.154401

ABSTRACT

Nonreciprocal hopping induces a synthetic magnetic flux which leads to the localization of electronic states in a Hatano-Nelson ring. In this paper, we study the effect of disorder on the transport properties of a Hatano-Nelson ring. We show that disorder induces a transition from a localized state to a delocalized state. This transition is accompanied by a change in the transport properties of the system. We show that disorder induces a transition from a localized state to a delocalized state. This transition is accompanied by a change in the transport properties of the system. We show that disorder induces a transition from a localized state to a delocalized state. This transition is accompanied by a change in the transport properties of the system.

Dr. Sudin Ganguly from the Department of Physics, published a research paper titled "Persistent current in a non-Hermitian Hatano-Nelson ring: Disorder-induced amplification" in Physical Review B (IF 3.3), published by the American Physical Society on 15th May 2025.

Design Patent Granted

A design patent was registered by Dr. Golam Mohiuddin, from the Department of Chemistry, and was granted by the patent office of India titled "Azobenzene Liquid Crystal Sensor For UV Light Detection."

Paper published in the peer-reviewed Uttar Pradesh Journal of Zoology

Ms Shabnam A. Kawsar, research scholar, Mr Aditya Das, and faculty members Dr Kangkan J. Sarma, Mr Sudipta Nag, Mr Syed Rizaul K. Ahmed, and Dr Arup Nama Das successfully published a research paper in the peer-reviewed Uttar Pradesh Journal of Zoology on 30th May 2025.

STUDENT ACHIEVEMENTS

Book Published by Students

Mr Manas Pratim Sarma, alumni from the Department of Zoology of the 2022-24 batch along with Ms Dikshita Kalita, a student of the ongoing batch has jointly co-authored a book chapter titled "Phytoestrogens: A natural adjunct in cancer treatment" for the book "Phytoestrogens Wellness."- an engrossing and much-needed subject, enhancing the academic skills of the super talented students.

Best Session Papers awarded

Anwesha Sarma and Mr. Bedanga B. Bora from the Department of Physics grabbed the title of the "Best Session Papers" at the prestigious 2nd International Conference on Data-Driven AI 2025. The conference was held at Assam Kaziranga University, Jorhat from 7th to 9th May 2025.
